4 URCC Manual of Style

- 1. The website formatting shall be based in large part on https://edwardtufte.github.io/tuftecss/, which is Dave Liepmann's adaptation of Edward Tufte's style.
- 2. The text formatting shall be loosely based on the latest Chicago Manual of Style (CMOS).⁶.
- 3. Where appropriate, for the purpose of increasing readability, with the consideration of the overwhelming number of website citations, the CMOS citation style may be simplified.
- 4. In quoting from a website, the first few words of a paragraph may be included while italicized, to reference the appropriate section of the website. This is to remedy the lack of page numbers and paragraph numbers on a website.
- 5. If the context is enough to identify the exact location of the source on a website, the footnote or sidenote may be omitted. Users can use the browser's search function to locate the source quote.
